LEWIS BLAKE HAS RECEIVED TO THE IS RECEIVING DAILY SENTINEL.

Death of an Old Citizen, Egeids von Rehr, born in France, a noldier of Egeide von Kehr, born in France; a soldier of Napoleon I., was expatriated by the government on the downfall of the great general, when the Bourbons resumed their dynasty, and came to the United States. He came to this city nearly thirty years ago, and avoiding human society, has imade, his home in the forests around the city, living in hollow tress or burrowing in the ground. He has obtained his victuals principally by begging, and when obtained, he would sit down and cat them anywhere in the street. His favorite place of resort to dincor sup, was the Terrace, where he would sit down upon the ground, and apparently hold a colloquy with himself, occasionally varying his tone into a halloo, in French, Spanish, or German. He would speak no English, although versed in the language, repeating that he would not speak the tonger of those who defaund and destroyed Napoleon. He was a companion of Napoleon in the brilliant march of the grand army upon Russia, and returned with the wreck of the innumerable agadrone, on the fatal and horrible retreat from the configuration of, Moscow.

He died last Wednesday evening at the Frie

the wreck of the innumerable equatrons, on the fatal and horrible retreat from the configration of Moscow.

He died last Wednesday evening at the Brie County Poor House. For the past winter he has slept and lived beneath the barn of Mr. Geo. W. Tift, about two miles from the city. Into this place he dragged an immense quantity of hay, which amounted to nearly two tons, and which was so filmly packed and woven that it effectually preserved him from the ferrible cold in the season just past. Here he was found on Wednesday morning last, entirely naked, in this hay which he had burrowed out, in the last stages of the typhoid faver. Mr. Rodney, Overseer of the Poor, had him conveyed immediately to the Poor Mouse, where every attention was paid him—but in valu—he died in the creating of the day on which he was brought there. He was known about town as Joins van Hawair.

His habits were of the most singular character, His habits were of the most singular character.

His nabits were of the most singular character, and although furtions, occasionally in language, which was usually French, he has always proved himself as harmless to society as child. If any garment of a description was given him, he would take it to his burrow, and cover it with would take it to his burrow, and cover it with patches, sewing them on the cloth without regard to rents. He has frequently been seen quarrelling with dogs for bones which had been thrown away, but of late he has been extremely choice in his eating, and obtained from the different hotels in this city a daily stipend of food, of a much better character than he had before indulged in. Various have been the attempts to obtain from his own lips his personal history. Honoless, bouseless, childless, riendless, and slone, he has wearily trod through sixty years of miscrable, ungrateful existence, and now goes down to life. A letter in the Independence Bilge, dated April 1, says Hamburg is, perhaps, of all the maritime nations of Europe, the most interested in the Battle trade. The corn business is slimest exclusively centered in the hands of our interchants who act as intermediate agents between Russan sellers and foreign buyers. The corn, eleginous sade, and other tertilevist productions of Russia are all paid for through the mediant of Humburg houses. The news of the fortunate conclusion of Peace was consequently received here will greater demonstrations of joy than anymere size. Everybody anticipates that the moment communications are re-opened, a new and buillant era will commence for the commerce of the Northern nations. At the Bourse of these day, numerous samples of cereals. will commence for the commence of the Northern nations. At the Borne of this day, numerous samples of excess, deliverable in Russian harbors at the opening of navigation next May, were exhibited. Note that and ling the eagerness of sellers to induce speculaters to purchase their grain, no bargain of any importance was concluded either yesterday or to-day. The price of all sorts of cereals were merely nominal. Rye, in particular, found no beyes.—Telegraph's deepstones just received from the three Russian Battle provinces state that measures were being taken to convey to that coast enormous quantities of grain accumulated, during the last two or three years, in the store of the interior.

The N.Y. Commercial's London correspondent writes as follows
Assuming that the authorities of the Russian ports will simultaneously annul all obstacles to the resumption of trade, an active shipment of produce may feetbeth be looked for. According to the last accounts from St. Perstrungh, pretit transactions were being entered into incomparatory to the breaking up of the ice at the end of the present month. The purchase of tailow, hemp, fax and seed, have been on a large scale. [From the Detroit Free Press, April 29.1 Frightful Callision-Steamer North-erner Sunk. On Sanday night about 11 o'clock, the steamer Forest Queen, Capt. Wadsworth, bound down from Point any Barques, collided with the steamer Northerner, Capt. Cole, from Cleveland for Saginaw, about four miles above the Fort Gratiot light, and one mile and a half from the American shore. The Forest Queen struck the larboard bow of the Northerner, some twenty-five free from the stem, cutting her nearly assunder, and causing her to sink in about six minutes. The Forest Queen sustained but slight injury-confined entirely to her stem.

Immediately after the collision, Capt. Cole alarmed the passengers in the cabin, while Mr.

Immediately after the collision, Capt. Cole alarmed the passengers in the cabin, while Mr. Kelsey, the tierk, aroused those below. Capt. C. then jumped on the bow of the Forest Queen—the boats hanging, as it were, together for two or three minutes—and succeeded in getting a large number of the passengers off the sinking vessel. As the boats separated, he, with others, got out the small boats. By the almost superhuman exertions of the officers and crows of both vessels the passengers all of them it is boats. vessels, the passengers—all of them, it is hoped of the Northerner were saved. The only person known to be missing, is her second engineer, Peter Moore, of Cleveland. It is possible that some of the passengers are lost, but none are known to be so. The trip sheet, &c., were not saved.

Mr. John A. Huff, his wife and seven children were in the steerage of the Northerner. He was awakened by the noise of the collision, and immediately gathering his family together, pushed them towards the main deck. On deck he missed one of the children, and, on returning to the steerage, found it floating in the water, then some two or more feet does. He caught it and get it.

them towards the main deck. On deck be missed one of the children, and, on returning to the steerage, found it floating in the water, then some two or more feet deep. He caught it and got its safe on deck just as the youngest of his flock was a weep overboard. He plunged into the water, swam some thirty beet, and succeeded in saving this child also. He, together with those for whose safety he had struggled so hard, were finally all got aboard of the Forest Queen.

Many of the passengers on board the Northerner had retired, and were saved with only their night clothes. No beggage or freight of any kind was saved. The passengers on board the Northerner had retired, and were saved with only their night clothes. No beggage or freight of any kind was saved. The passengers and crew of the loss steamer were brought down to Newport, where the femsles and others were provided for, by the kindness of the citizens, with garmens &c. The Forest Queen arrived here about 4 o'clock P. M. The night was very dark and foggy. As to the consultance of the collision, or the party blamable, we can give no opinion. In many material points, statements are conflicting.

The Northerner lies in about twenty-five feet water. She was purchased the present spring by Messrs. Beech, Moore & Co., of Saginaw. All of the crew, with the exception of it was for Messrs. We are authorized to sell 10 acres of excellent land with the particular and particularized.
The Forest Queen returned from Port Huron to the scene of the disaster in the morning, and then sailed for this city. Even if passengers are missing, there is a chance that they reached the shore in safety, as many articles were thrown overboard to assist those who leaped into the water, of whom there were but comparatively few and all that was seen was taken a head.

few, and all that were seen were taken on board the Forest Queen, The Late Blot at Erie. The passage of a favorable bill to the Lake Shore road has irritated some of the Eric folks, and the war burst out on Friday evening, having Shore road has irritated some of the Eric folks, and the war burst out on Friday evening, having been brought to a fury by an alterention and fight between young Walker and Cochran in the Constitution printing office. The Cleveland Plainidealer says the bells were rung, and a crowd of rail-nippers gathered in, the sign of the office was torn down, and a grand bon-free made in the street of everything in the building of a combustible nature. A large quantity of printing paper, all of the law library of Mr. Johnson, railroad attorney, and editor of the paper, with all his railroad accounts, were destroyed. The mobition got out the cannon, and being excited by the tunder, went to work and gutted the building, entirely demolishing it. The loss of Mr. Johnson must amount to several thousand dollars. They atterwards proceeded to the house of Mr. Tracy, another prominent railroad man, and fired several bullets in at the windows, and threw brick-bats and other missiles at other houses. The affair is one of the most disgraceful that ever blackened the fame of any city. From Tracy's they went to Walker's, but his windows being fortified by close window shutters, they were unable to affect anything. Had they succeeded in getting in, they would have been met with murderous weapons, as young Walker's friends had assembled there in considerable numbers. What the upshot of the matter will be remains to be seen.
